At Creativeworld 2025, leading manufacturers and exciting newcomers to the international hobby, craft and artists' supplies industry will be presenting their latest products and innovations, setting important trends. During the four days of the fair, trade visitors will be able to see products from renowned exhibitors such as Clairefontaine, Colart, Rico Design, Schmincke, Staedtler and many other leading brands. Thanks to new exhibitors Anest Iwata-Medea, BeaverCraft or The Mouse Mansion Company, Creativeworld is gaining new sources of inspiration for those interested in airbrushing, wood carving and somewhat different dollhouses. Top quality paintbrushes, valued by professionals worldwide, will be presented by Da Vinci. Versatile transfer materials from Poli-Tape are opening up new possibilities in textile finishing. Retailers can see for themselves at their workshops on the Creative Academy stage. Also part of the Creative Academy is Royal Talens, the renowned supplier of high-quality art materials with the brands Amsterdam, Sakura or Rembrandt. This year, the leading trade fair was once again able to attract Brother International. In addition to the product portfolio of printers, multifunction devices with laser and ink technology, scanners and labelling systems, trade visitors will also find Brother's range of products for sewing, embroidery, quilting and creative design.

For ideal preparation for the trade fair, visitors can find all participating exhibitors online using the exhibitor and product search of Creativeworld.

Creativeworld will continue to take place at the same time as Ambiente and Christmasworld at the Frankfurt exhibition centre. However, the three trade fairs will be moved to the beginning of February to ensure that the trade fair dates are harmonised.
